Ghaf Tajmohammad
Curatorial Project Manager

As the Curatorial Project Manager at the Migration Museum since 2021, Ghaf Tajmohammad has played a role in bringing to fruition a range of temporary and major exhibitions. Leveraging his expertise as a practising artist and background as an art fabricator, he has contributed significantly to the realisation of these projects.

Ghaf's personal journey from Afghanistan to the UK has instilled in him a profound commitment to fostering social integration among migrant communities. His academic background includes a degree in Painting from the University of the Arts London.

ABOUT US OUR WORK HIGHLIGHTS EVENTS BLOG COLLABORATIONS FUNDERS GET INVOLVED

ABOUT US

Counterpoints Arts is a leading national organisation in the field of arts, migration and cultural change.

We support the arts by and about refugees and migrants and we produce a range of programmes in the UK and internationally, including Refugee Week, PopChange and Platforma festival.

Our work takes place at the intersection of climate, racial justice, mental health and displacement.

Our mission is to support and produce the arts by, with and about migrants and refugees, seeking to ensure that their voices and experiences play a pivotal role in shaping and influencing our arts, history, and culture.

Central to our mission is our belief that art is much more than an aesthetic experience; that it can open spaces for people to talk across differences. Inspire community participation and foster a more compassionate society.

Framing Migration

A three part visual research project exploring the creation and dissemination of imagery by NGOs working in Calais and Dunkirk, Northern France. 2019 - 2022.
