describe your outfit Baggy red bottoms with a yellow lightning bolt and a big star do you have a special move? Leads - the Four Fifty Splash for starters ambitions? To wrestle in Japan - it's a whole different thing out there here? The wrestler Bret Hart if you were a drink what would you be and why? A pint of Lager, just because how do you relax? Sitting in bed watching a film cross-generational appeal and were particularly popular amongst the rabid grannies who bayed for blood ringside. "Easy! Easy!" they screamed as BD delivered one of his trademark splashes, dropping his full 26 stone on to the prone form of his opponent. Ironically, wrestling aficionados insist that bouts involving Diddy, born Shirley Crabtree, and Haystack were technically awful and their vacant showmanship really led to the long and terrible demise of British wrestling. Saturday afternoon wrestling regularly got audiences of 10m but when current BBC DG Greg Dyke arrived at ITV in 1988, he
